Bahram Ghazi
UN Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights advisor on urbanization, land and human rights

Why you should listen:
A Doctor in international relations and international law, Mr. Bahram Ghazi has extensive experience in human rights and their application in practice. He is currently the United Nations Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) advisor on urbanization, land and human rights. He has taken part and conducted human rights fact-finding and assessment missions in various parts of the world, including on the right to adequate housing. He has published and contributed to numerous books, articles and reports including on international financial institutions; economic, social and cultural rights; forced evictions; and development.